

Listen to me, I'm a patient...

www.open2.net/health

The Open University

B B C

wellcometrust

Listen to me, I'm a patient...

Everyone's a patient. During our lives we all make important choices about our healthcare, whether treating sickness or generally keeping ourselves well.

During Spring 2008, Kathy Sykes explored different types of healthcare in a new OU/BBC series, Alternative Therapies and weighed her knowledge as a scientist with her experience as a patient.

Now we want to hear from you. We want to find out about the choices you make about your healthcare, be it conventional, complementary or alternative. What are your opinions, expectations and experiences?

Come along and take part in our study by joining a discussion near you.

8th May 2008, 6:30 – 8:30pm

Dana Centre, 165 Queen's Gate, South
Kensington, London, SW7 5HD

For more information, or to book your free place, e-mail tickets@danacentre.org.uk or call 020 942 4040

www.open2.net/health

Your contributions will help us to understand more about peoples' healthcare. A report, based on our study, will go live on our website (www.open2.net) during Autumn 2008.